The members of the Needlework Guild are working hard to make provision against the stress of cold and to aid and encourage the poor in their struggle to do for themselves. These things are all boming across the winter's horizon, and society is arranging to pay its debt.

The question of the hour—Was the society lead in yesterday's Argus inter ded for jest or carnest?

A great deal of interest centers in footbell at present. It will undoubtedly be the game of the fall months. Already there is talk of a big Thanksgiving game, when society will turn out to see the heroes of the gridfron.

There were a number of theatre parties at the Grand during the week, and yesterday at the matines the boxes were filled with gally-dressed belies and stately matrons.

All the companies of the Twenty-fourth infantry have arrived and taken possession of their quarters at Fort Douglas. Salt Lake people will welcome them most cordially. The people at the fort have always been great favorites, and from the many pleasant things heard of the Twenty-fourth, it is safe to predict that the officers and addies will undoubtedly be a great acquisition to society circles.

witness. He testified that Chapman was a bunco man; that he had seen a "flash roll" and a pair of locks taken from the defendant which he knew were a part of the paraphernalis of a bunco steerer. When asked by Judge McKay to describe the use confidence men made of such things, a vigorous objection came from Attorney Straup, and counsel for both sides spoke at length on the admissability of such testimony. The court held it admissabile, and Chief Pratt described at length the methods of confidence men in defrauding people by the lock trick. He had seen the defendant wasking about the streets during the period covered by the complaint with no visible means of support.

On cross-examination Mr. Straum.

Dor Bruce Garrett, a veterinary sur-of support.

On cross-examination Mr. Straup asked the chief how he knew the defendant had made use of the locks found on his person to defraud people. Chief Pratt replied that Chapman had never tried it on him, but he knew he had on others.

OFFICER BURBIGE.

OFFICER BURBIGE.

Police Officer Burbige testified that Chapman was a "sure thing man," and that to his knowledge he had no lawful occupation. In cross-examination, Attorney Straup handed the witness the city directory and asked him to go through and indicate what persons named therein had lawful or unlawful occupations. Witness replied that he could do so with reference to such persons as he knew. On further cross-examination witness was compelled to admit he only knew the defendant to be a "sure thing man" by hearsay, and that he had never seen him participating in any game of chance. On motion, his evidence was stricken out. Mr. Straup gave the city attorney a rub by asking the witness if he had ever seen the defendant do any work. Witness replied "No." "Did you ever see Judge McKny do any work?" asked Mr. Straup. Witness was compelled to confess he had not, while everybody smiled at Judge McKny's expense.

A STRONG WITNESS,

Dr. Bruce Garrett, a veterinary surgeon, testified that Chapman had been employed by him as assistant at various times for some time past, and gave from a memorandum book the amounts he had paid him for his services, the whole of which amounted to about $55 for three months.

William Griffiths testified that the defendant had some time ago come to him with a proposition to invest in the Sunshine mine, taying he had parties who wished to purchase. $50 had been paid down, but the deal had subsequently failen through.

This constituted the defense, arguments were made and the case submitted to the Jury. They were out only a few minutes when they returned with a verdict of acquittal.
